IMPERIAL STEAM COOKED HORSE FEED is made of whole corn and oats steamed and kiln dried. Most horsemen are convinced of three things before they begin to use Imperial Steam Cooked Horse feed, its SAFETY, HIGH NUTRITIVE VALUE and its HIGH DIGESTIBILITY. It is very high in DIGESTIBLE NUTRIENTS and is surely PRODUCTIVE OF ENERGY and MUSCLE. INDIGESTION and COLIC are unknown troubles when your horses are fed on this diet. Water less than eight per cent, fiber less than four per cent, carbohydrates seventy-two per cent. It takes about 2,300 pounds of raw grains to make a ton of Imperial Steam Cooked Feed which is put up in one hundred pound sacks, running about one hundred quarts to the bag. It takes three bags to a horse to give it a fair trial and watch results. For sale by

"SPEED THE FLOW!"

Waterin' th' Horses.

I took 'em horses to th' brook—to water 'em you know. It was cold with just a touch o' frost;

"And as we went a-joggin' down I couldn't help it, O city folk 'an' all the things they lost.

Of course they have their lighted streets—but Great White Way ain't such a place to have, their buildings large and tall;

But, they never know it, joy o' ridin' to th' brook;

An' somehow they don't envy 'em at all!

Perhaps I'd like it—for awhile—to hear 'em sing;

But somehow, I don't know exactly why;

I'm not in the country callin' me; I'd long ago given up.

For God's sakes, blue, against the sky;

I took 'em horses to th' brook—to water 'em you know.

The day was pretty as a day can be;

An' as we went a-joggin' down I couldn't help it, O city folk 'an' all they never see!

—Margaret E. Saenger.

All in an Orchard Fair.

The orchard is the temple of the great god, Gravity. It probably always has been, probably will be. Adam and Eve walked and the snakes wriggled thereto, but it took ages to gain enlightenment—till the days of Sir Isaac Newton. When he walked in the orchard he shivered with fear, terror, and indecision, glancing here and blushing beauties there. Now nature made blushing beauties, probably to be looked at, but man with his usual perversity, in his first legitimate act, made a new and lasting one, when he walked in the orchard, and Newton broke this man-made law, the presiding divinity took a chance at like with one of these beauties. She hit him squarely in the soft place in his head, and he fell, and the world was created. Of course, the blushing beauties there, the god and the above named blushing beauties, were destined, but posterity has. Nothing but Gravity all through would do for either.

Newton may have thought, just because he was a high brow, that he was the only one who had blushing beauties, and that they hated him. Also, he never walked in the orchard, and he was deprived of ultra-violet light, died from a disease known to chicken-growers as "weak legs," but which we term "rickets."

The importance of these experiments would be easily understood by anyone applicable to the raising of chickens.

They are quite as applicable to the production of eggs and more important still, they are applicable to the raising of our own children. For the same reason that the death rate can be reduced by applying the ultra-violet rays.

The first criminal case to go before a jury was that of Carlo Walo, a blind, illegitimate boy, 16, accused of killing a female companion.

Walo was brought before the judge, told him he could scarcely expect the same treatment as the other boy, and she became suddenly silent. She simply could not bear to see Will Mason laugh. He was well bred and of good family—surely he knew it was common and annoying to go on ad if he were having an epileptic attack every time he heard something funny. She actually felt embarrassed for him, and often wondered why the chair did not give way, beneath him. Every minute she expected to see it happen, and sometimes wished it would.

Perhaps it would teach him a lesson.

"It's all right to tell jokes," he remarked a moment later, breaking in on her thoughts, "but, Louise, you're evading me, and I'm not going to give it up again. If there's any more of it done you'll have to do it." He was all serious now, and the girl felt that his words were final.

"Oh, dear, Will, I can't tell you how I feel about it. Sometimes I think it terrible, but I love you and sometimes I think it's wonderful."

She seemed to be in a daze, and then was observed to throw away a glass can.

On searching the auto two such cans were found in the door pockets. They were quart cans filled with apple juice, which had been taken before the boy was born.

Don't Fall to Vote.

On the 3rd of November, which date is now only a week distant, the people will elect a president and a vice-president of the United States. That is, they will cast their votes. They will probably elect a man who is not a candidate whom they might not have chosen, if the election would be left to congress, with a likelihood of undesirable results.

It ought not to be necessary to urge the men and women of our country to the performance of their civic duty by voters to cast their ballots. But the figures show that the percentage of those who neglect that duty increases with each election.

Do not let us chance fail to fix that date in mind, and what is equally important, don't neglect the duty when the date comes. Vote! Both because you want your voice heard, and because the outcome, and because you wish to perform your duty as a citizen.

To the Veteran Soldiers.

Should we support for the presidential candidate on Nov. 3rd, or should we support the present? Coolidge's attitude on pension affairs, can we do any better by supporting any other candidate in the field? Davis was not a member of Congress when the War Department was created, has he not a right to pension legislation? His reported alliance with Wall Street interests that are opposed to any further aid to the old veterans, say he has given no satisfactory evidence of friendliness to the veterans.

As to LaFollette, he was a member of congress when the bill was passed, but did not vote either for it nor against it, in the attempt to pass it over the veto. He voted for it, it would now be a law, had only one more vote was required to pass it.

We have no assurance that Davis or LaFollette under similar conditions would do different.

It is thought that with some important modifications of the "Spoonbill" bill, to be presented at the next session of congress, Coolidge may be convinced that the bill should receive his sanction. Either of the other candidates elected, in my opinion, will be forced to pass the bill in order to keep it from becoming a law.

Otherwise than in pension affairs, there are many other problems that front him, able and wisely, and under existing conditions can we do any better than to give him our support? Veterans, let us continue to be loyal, hopeful, yet not despairing. Vote as you consider direct, and vote anyhow. Don't be a "slacker."

SICKNESS.

Here and There.

If it was not for the thrill from danger it is quite possible humanity would be exposed to far less risk in the hands of the departments. It seems horses feel the same thrill in the men, or did when they were used in the fire service. Two drivers, fine horses, Ed and Fred, degraded to drawing a street sweeper nights. One night recently, while engaged in this work, the new modern apparatus exploded by them. It was too much for the wages and they started to follow. Their driver, George Rigele, was unable to check their rush. On turning a corner the sweeper struck an auto and the two men were thrown into the street. They kept on until the sweeper got stuck with an electric light pole and Ed and Dick were forced to stop.

It is well known that Joseph Pulitzer left various prizes for excellence in literature, art, science and the like. This was for drama—that is he gives $1000 for the best play produced annually. Last year this prize went to The Riches of the Earth, written recently by Harper Brown. There have been various criticisms of the play, some thinking it excellent, others bad, and others very bad. The substance is a good one, but the author has not aimed for antagonism. If the author is seeking sensation, he must have been gratified in his choice of a name, which is "Hell Bent for Heaven." One thing is certain, as the bad boy remarked, It's gotta "holler" name.

One sometimes hears of people who are helplessly fascinated in some way to a dangerous place and see death slowly but surely approaching. Sometimes a ship goes down passing through that position, but seldom a town on dry land. There is one, however, in California that is in a similar position. It is the little town of West Portal, a small community on the edge of the Mojave Desert. The winds over Death Valley blow constantly toward it. Three years ago a team of save, half a mile in width, was formed to go to the town, but that date has been constantly passing toward the village. At rate of approach it will cover the village with fifty feet of sand within five years, unless some precautions to ward off the calamity can be made.

Walter S. Mills of Arapaho, Okla., is running for Congress. Just exactly what he stands for is unknown to the writer, but it is known that what he does not stand for. That's the KKK. He's "K.K.K." He's "gig" that is making another kind of propaganda against it, he is putting out a paper called "Auntie Cliché" which he calls "Auntie Cliché" the name of which, we hope, is the least, is illuminating.

Up north, says MacMillan, Eskimos pray to evil spirits. They think good ones will be all right anyway.

Oxford County Fruit Show.

An event of the ordinary will be the county fruit show which will be held in Association Hall, South Paris, Tues., Oct. 29th, from 1 to 4 P.M. This is known, but for a single county to put on a whole show is unusual. It has never before been done in Oxford County, but it is to be done in the state that can make a success of it, Oxford is certainly the county.

In connection with the show, the annual meeting of the Oxford County Farm Bureau will be held Saturday, Nov. 4, and 5 and 6. State fruit short course will be given in the afternoon. All men are expected to be present, and visitors are invited.

Fees in good amount have been offered for different kinds of fruit display, which should induce a lively competition on the part of growers.

To meet the needs of an object for people to come to South Paris, the merchants of the town will offer special bargains and inducements to customers on the days of the show.

At rate of approach it will cover the village with fifty feet of sand within five years, unless some precautions to ward off the calamity can be made.

Walter S. Mills of Arapaho, Okla., is running for Congress. Just exactly what he stands for is unknown to the writer, but it is known that what he does not stand for. That's the KKK. He's "K.K.K." He's "gig" that is making another kind of propaganda against it, he is putting out a paper called "Auntie Cliché" which he calls "Auntie Cliché" the name of which, we hope, is the least, is illuminating.

Up north, says MacMillan, Eskimos pray to evil spirits. They think good ones will be all right anyway.

Oxford County Fruit Show.

An event of the ordinary will be the county fruit show which will be held in Association Hall, South Paris, Tues., Oct. 29th, from 1 to 4 P.M. This is known, but for a single county to put on a whole show is unusual. It has never before been done in Oxford County, but it is to be done in the state that can make a success of it, Oxford is certainly the county.

In connection with the show, the annual meeting of the Oxford County Farm Bureau will be held Saturday, Nov. 4, and 5 and 6. State fruit short course will be given in the afternoon. All men are expected to be present, and visitors are invited.

Fees in good amount have been offered for different kinds of fruit display, which should induce a lively competition on the part of growers.

To meet the needs of an object for people to come to South Paris, the merchants of the town will offer special bargains and inducements to customers on the days of the show.

Supervatives of the Molasses Jar.

Simple, homely things, to be good all must be superlatively good. A pale, solid slab of cold gingerbread is hardly fit to eat to a tramp, but gingerbread hot from the oven, and tender, with crisp corners, and a glossy coat—that is a different matter. And perfect results are after all chiefly a matter of painstaking and—the right way.

Molasses, as we all know, is either dark or light, and whether we choose the golden, New Orleans variety, or the dark, molasses of the market, or Boston, is largely a matter of personal preference. Few foodstuffs differ more in quality. Molasses, unadulterated and undiluted, is a sweet second only to honey for flavor, and is good, but the best is good enough, and molasses guaranteed pure can be bought at the grocer's.

Coolidge or Chaos Is Sole Choice of Citizens as Deadlock Menace Threatens.

BRYAN OGRE LOOMS IF VOTERS SUPPORT LAFOULLETTE TICKET

Analysis of Situation Shows Danger of Nebraskan Going to White House.

LITTLE DOUBT WHO SENATE WOULD NAME

LaFollette or Chaos Is Sole Choice of Citizens as Deadlock Menace Threatens.

Coolidge or Chaos.

That is about what the coming election resolves itself into. A vote for Coolidge is a vote for Bryan. It is generally known that Davis cannot possibly muster the votes of the majority of the electoral votes to be named President, but the result would affect every state, as the whole country is in suspense, was attempted. If, on top of this, the Senate should get into a deadlock as the house is certain to, the depression might easily become a panic, with terrific and far-reaching results.

Other Possibilities.

There is the outside chance, in the event of Coolidge failing to receive a majority of the electoral votes, that when the matter comes to the Senate, such Democrats as Glass of Virginia, Bruce of Maryland and Underwood of Alabama would vote for General Dawes, the Republican nominee, rather than put such a man as Bryan in the White House.

A large body of thought in the United States holds to the opinion that the whole country is in suspense, as the election is to be decided by the Senate, favoring the chances favoring the election of Bryan as vice president. The house being unable to elect a majority to name one of the candidates for President, as it is at present organized, the Senate, under the Constitution, would elect a vice president and the vice president elected by the Senate would become President on March 4. That is why a vote for Davis or LaFollette is a vote for Coolidge.

The official counting of the electoral votes is not done until February. The Twelfth amendment to the Constitution provides as follows for the conduct of the congress in case of the electoral college makes no choice:

Constitutional Provision.

"And if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three, the house of representatives shall choose immediately by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary of all the states to be necessary to a choice.
